NATIONAL SUICIDE PREVENTION AWARENESS MONTH

SEPTEMBER

September marks another Suicide Prevention Month, a time to acknowledge all those struggling with mental health conditions and reflect on ways we can better express compassion, empathy, and understanding.

Just as a farmer nurtures their crops, we must tend to our mental health, planting seeds of self-care, watering them with support, and harvesting hope. And just as a bountiful harvest is more likely when farmers work together, share knowledge, and support one another, our mental well-being flourishes when we cultivate a community of care, where we can grow and thrive together.

Within Otter Tail County, the suicide rate is 15.9 per 100,000. This is higher than the national average of 14.2. Suicide is prevalent in our communities and has affected most if not all in this county.

How can we recognize signs that someone may be struggling with suicidal thoughts?

One of the best indicators that you should check in with someone is if you notice a change in their life. This is often seen as a change in the following ways:

Words
References to an end increase such as "I can't do this anymore."

Behavior
Usual routines are replaced such as an outgoing person suddenly self-isolating.

Situation
Any external change in their life such as problems in their relationships, career, or finances.

These can all increase the likelihood of having suicidal thoughts. Familiarize yourself with other warning signs and risk factors. Mental health often thrives on stability and consistency, so when there is a change in one of these factors it can negatively impact wellbeing.

Once you recognize the warning signs, it is time to act by using the five action steps from #BeThe1To (<https://www.bethe1to.com/>).

Ask.
How: Directly ask, "Are you thinking about suicide?" Listen without judgment. Focus on their reasons for living, not on why you think they should.

Why: Talking openly about suicide can reduce suicidal thoughts.

Be there.
How: Be present, whether in person, by phone, or through other means. If you can't, help them find someone who can.

Why: Being connected to others can protect against suicide.

Help Keep Them Safe.
How: If suicide is a concern, ask if they've done anything to harm themselves or if they have a plan.

Why: These questions help assess the level of danger.

Help Them Connect.
How: Work with them to create a Safety Plan to guide them through a crisis.

Why: Staying connected reduces feelings of hopelessness and depression.

Follow Up.
How: Check in with them by text, call, or message to offer continued support.

Why: Ongoing contact reinforces their sense of connection and can reduce suicide risk.

As a community, what can we do to prevent suicide?

Check in on others and check in on yourself. Focus on normalizing mental health instead of just reducing stigma.

Emphasize that suicide is preventable. Familiarize yourself with national and local resources.

Resources
988 Suicide and Crisis Lifeline - provides free and confidential support for people in distress
Mobile Mental Health Crisis Response Team - short term, face-to-face services designed to restore a person's functioning level to pre-Crisis levels

Peer-to-peer Warmlines creates a safe and supportive space to talk with peers who have experience living with a mental health condition
The Mental Health Minnesota Warmline
Wellness in the Woods

We can make our community stronger and more resilient as we learn to change the narrative with how we talk about mental health and continually check in on ourselves and others. You can be the difference to save someone's life.
